LOCAL: CARE FACTS

CANADA

On July 1, 2014, 15.7% of Canada’s population was aged 65+.

By 2016, it is projected that the number of seniors aged 65 and older will be greater than the number of children under the age of 15.

The majority 93% of Canadian seniors lived in a private household in 2010, with women age 85 and older being twice as likely as their male counterparts to live alone.

Falls have historically been one of the leading causes of injury hospitalizations for seniors.

Seniors utilize 45% of all provincial/territorial public sector health spending.
